

Hogan Fun & Connect Day

The Hogan Entrepreneurial and Leadership Program brought Hogan students together for a fun and engaging day of connection and creativity. Hosted by Program Advisor Ana Acuña and Associate Director Ann Kishi, students participated in the Campus Sustainability Shark Tank, where they created and pitched their own innovative business ideas focused on sustainability. Congratulations to our winners — Greta Bornmann, Joshua Laguana, and Isabela Minaudo — for their winning company, Project Zero. Their pitch focused on minimizing food waste on campus and raising awareness about how much food is often thrown away in dining areas. Their idea highlighted the importance of sustainability and showed how small changes can make a big impact within the campus community. Through creativity and teamwork, students demonstrated how innovative thinking can help address real-world challenges on campus.
